After serving in the Army during World War II, he graduated from Louisiana State University with a degree in petroleum engineering in 1951. As a young engineer in training, he was transferred to Artesia, New Mexico where he met his wife of 65 years, Sue, who was in Artesia working as a first grade teacher. They married on November 13, 1953 and later moved to east Texas for his job and where they started a family.

His career in the energy industry progressed from field production engineer in Louisiana, to drilling engineer in Oklahoma and then in 1974 to an executive position with an independent energy firm in Houston. He retired in 1991 to spend more time with his family.

He and Sue became avid travelers visiting the pyramids of Egypt, the Great Wall of China, the Holy Land, Machu Picchu, the rivers of Europe and many other fun and exciting locations. As a loving father, he was always supportive of his children's and grandchildren's activities in sports, scouts and especially education. As a result, all four of his children achieved college degrees and successful careers. He has been a loving and proud grandpa and great-grandpa. He will be forever missed by his family and by everyone who crossed his path.
